Historical Information

The General Oral History Collection was established in 1975 when the Columbus College Archives/Chattahoochee Valley Historical Collections was taken over by the History Department of Columbus State University. The original collection included several hundred oral histories. Its founders, John S. Lupold and Richard Hanks, incorporated oral histories into their local history and historical methods classes. Craig Lloyd, former Director of the archives, also contributed several oral histories concerning various local history topics. Over time oral histories conducted by students of Virginia Causey in her Oral History classes have also been added. Other interviews have been donated by individuals or as part of smaller projects.

Scope and Content

The General Oral History Collection is a continuously growing collection which currently includes over 700 interviews discussing many local History topics. Narrators span races, ages, social class, education, etc. Some of the most common topics include African American history, Ft. Benning, Columbus State University, Phenix City, and teaching in the Chattahoochee Valley region. Many of the interviews have been transcribed, but most consist of only the original recording.

Permission to Publish

Permission to publish material from the General Oral History Collection must be obtained from the Columbus State University Archives. Use of the following credit line for publication or exhibit is required:

General Oral History Collection (MC 303) Columbus State University Archives Columbus, Georgia

Provenance

The General Oral History Collection has been obtained by numerous interviewers from 1974-Present.
