
Purchasing Office

The University Purchasing Office is a service unit dependent upon the cooperation and assistance of all University units and departments in order to be the most beneficial to the University. The mission of the Columbus State University Purchasing Department is to provide University departments with customer-oriented procurement for their effective and efficient support of the University's mission.