Contract	Term	Course	Contract Title	Description
379084	Spring 2018	PHYS 1112	Comparison of Two Everyday Physics Books	Alongside the covered topics of this physics course , this honors contract would include reading “ First you build a cloud” as well as a comparison of it to excerpts of the professors own book. Both books make a case that physics laws can be directly or metaphorically used in informing our options for productive and fulfilling living. The project will evaluate the viability of this thesis as it pertains to college students taking physics courses. It will also compare the approaches and suggestions in these two books. This will serve as a foundation for further exploration of physics concepts in this course that collegiate lectures are not generally capable of.
