379104	Spring 2018	THEA 3107	Creative Dramatics For The High School	As a part of this course, we will be teaching 6 days in an elementary school classroom which will be an amazing learning experience for me. However, my desired position when I graduate will be a high school theatre teacher. That is where this project comes in to make this course even more relevant to my studies. In order to prepare myself for adapting the tools, techniques, exercises, and games that I learn in this course to my desired field, I will be creating a Creative Dramatics unit adapted for a high school theatre class.
379095	Spring 2018	THEA 4445	Characterization in Different Age Ranges	I will be interviewing each cast member of Junie B. Jones Is Not a Crook. I would like to know each actor's process in discovering a character, changing ages, and making everything you do believable. I will ask each actor their major, what acting training they have, how they applied their training, how they worked on developing a character that is older/younger than them, how they switch between different characters, what research they did for their characters, and what helped them the most throughout the process to connect. Also, I will be asking how they take their homework into the performance and what kind of mindset they have to prepare for themselves.
