

Comprehensive Program Review Fall 2013

Bachelor of Music in Performance

Schwob School of Music

Columbus State University

Section One - Program Background and Overview

Note: In July, 2013, the Schwob School of Music achieved full re-accreditation for all degree programs through 2022 from the National Association of Schools of Music (NASM).

I. Brief Program Overview

Description of Program

The Bachelor of Music in Performance degree offers instruction in voice, piano, organ, and all orchestral and band instruments (flute, oboe, clarinet, saxophone, bassoon, trumpet, horn, trombone, euphonium, tuba, violin, viola, cello, double bass, guitar, harp, and percussion). The degree is designed for the student who plans to perform professionally or teach at the university level.

“The title, Bachelor of Music in Performance, appears to be appropriate for the content of this degree and is represented consistently in all related publications. Student work conducted by enrollees appears consistent with NASM expectations, the program appears to be meeting the needs of students, and processes are in place for evaluating student competencies consistent with NASM standards.” (NASM Visitors’ Report, 2012)

Program Mission and Its Relation to CSU Mission

The Bachelor of Music in Performance fulfills the missions of both the Schwob School of Music and Columbus State University. The program strives to prepare students for successful careers in their chosen fields through academic excellence, service (concerts, teaching, and outreach), best practices in education, and student engagement in professional experiences. These goals are concurrent with the CSU mission of preparing “individuals for a life of success, leadership, and responsibility through community awareness, engagement, and service to others.” In addition, members of the faculty are evaluated according to their dedication to “excellence through teaching, research, and creative inquiry.”

The Mission Statement of the Schwob School of Music, unanimously ratified in the fall of 2007, presents in concise terms the unit’s philosophy as a community of faculty:

A school of music within a public university, the Schwob School of Music at Columbus State University is a community of artists committed to the highest standards of artistry and integrity within a selective and nurturing learning environment.. The Schwob School of Music’s dedicated faculty of teaching artists embrace creative approaches to best practices in education, and provide a professionally focused experience preparing individuals to become leaders in the music field. Centrally located within a vibrant downtown arts campus in an outstanding music facility, the Schwob School of Music maintains a strong degree of community engagement, and benefits from a remarkable relationship with the Columbus community.

The Mission Statement communicates the essence of the school’s purpose and provides a context for future planning. The Mission Statement plays a central role in program and curricular planning by the School of Music.

Stakeholder's Satisfaction with the Program

According to informal exit interviews and alumni feedback, students have reported that they feel well prepared to enter graduate study at leading institutions or to continue taking on greater challenges within their professional careers at graduate schools, professional orchestras, and various levels of teaching environment. Faculty members are satisfied with student progress in the program. As noted in the 2012 NASM Visitor's Report, the curriculum compares favorably with accredited performance programs across the nation.

Relation of Program to Needs of Students and Societal Demand

The program's curriculum provides students with practical and in-depth learning opportunities. Students graduate to become successful performers and teachers in their chosen professional fields, as well as continuing their graduate studies at highly ranked national and international institutions of higher education.

Graduates of the BM in Performance program have been accepted to some of the most prestigious graduate programs in music in the country and around the world, and have won or placed in many competitions, further evidence that the performing level of graduating students meets or exceeds NASM standards. Performance standards set by the faculty are very high, and every effort is made to ensure that the performing level of graduates is correspondingly elevated in order to prepare them to enter the competitive professional world. Many within the greater Columbus area recognize the Schwob School of Music as one of CSU's flagship programs; the success of students in this degree track is a significant contributing factor of that recognition.

Section Two - Indicators of Program Quality

II A. Quality of Faculty - Very Strong

"The school is well served by a collection of full and part-time faculty who appear to be qualified by virtue of professional experience, academic credentials, and strong records of performance and service. The specialties of the various full-time and part-time performance faculty are distributed so that appropriate expertise and experience is available for the various instruments/voice studios. While the school aspires to have full-time faculty instructors in all applied studios, it has found creative ways to ensure that its applied teaching mission is covered." (NASM Visitors' Report, 2012)

Use of Part Time Faculty

Adjunct faculty: 15; Full-time faculty equivalence: 5.125

Part-time faculty teach undergraduate classes in the music core curriculum shared by all music degree programs, undergraduate courses for the general student, and private instruction on various instruments. All applied part-time faculty are specialists/performers on their instruments/voice. All classroom part-time faculty hold appropriate terminal degrees in music.

Diversity of Faculty (full-time)

White/Non-Hispanic: 25; African-American: 1; 11 of 26 full-time faculty are female.

Opportunities for Faculty Development

Each full-time faculty member is provided a travel budget; in recent years the budget was $400 to $500 per faculty member. This amount combines funding available from the College of the Arts and the SSOM. Faculty are also encouraged to apply for university-level development funds. For larger faculty development grants, faculty are encouraged to apply for external grants.

Program Improvement Plans

Columbus State University and the Schwob School of Music have made a consistent effort, in an era of shrinking budgets, to support faculty travel to professional conferences and venues. Faculty development funds necessary to support scholarly and creative work are perceived as a top priority by the School of Music, including travel for presentations, performances, recruitments, and, to a lesser extent, attendance at regional, national, and international professional conferences. The Schwob School of Music is also working to maintain the Music Technology faculty position, which was created as a temporary position using external funds, and which provides a vital curricular component of the BM in Performance as well as other degrees.

II B. Quality of Teaching—Very Strong

Indicators of Good Teaching

“The school is well served by a collection of full and part-time faculty who appear to be qualified by virtue of professional experience, academic credentials, and strong records of performance and service. The specialties of the various full-time and part-time performance faculty are distributed so that appropriate expertise and experience is available for the various instruments/voice studios. While the school aspires to have full-time faculty instructors in all applied studios, it has found creative ways to ensure that its applied teaching mission is covered.” (NASM Visitors’ Report, 2012)

A. Peer Review

Instituted in 2007, all full-time faculty of the Schwob School of Music participate voluntarily in a formative Peer Review evaluation process designed provide teachers with information used to improve teaching. Working in teams of three, faculty observe each other in their respective classrooms, including applied studios, and, following a carefully designed procedure of pre- and post-observations focusing on such items as effective course design, effective classroom performance, effective course syllabi, and so forth, review their teaching efforts in a private and confidential matter. This formative evaluation process operates outside of the summative process prescribed by the University, ensuring authentic feedback based on relationships of trust, honesty, and genuine concern for the individual. The process provides descriptive information between colleagues with concrete details that provide the basis for individual and collective teaching improvement.

Peer Review is one departmental effort to ensure on-going compliance with the Schwob Mission Statement. Through Peer Review, teaching becomes a dynamic property of the community, encouraging “the scholarship of teaching”—the thoughtful, problem-solving, discipline-based approach to teaching that requires continual reasoning about instructional choices, and awareness of the solutions that other faculty have utilized to facilitate student learning.

B. Attentive Teaching in Music Performance

Making every effort to bring each student’s potential to its highest and unique level of achievement is a central teaching focus for all faculty. Instructors not only stress “how to teach students to perform certain repertoire and become better players,” but equally or more importantly, “how to bring out the finest performance level of each student according to his or her unique strengths and weaknesses.” All applied (performance-based) vocal/instrumental teaching is accomplished on a 1:1 student:teacher ratio. The norm is 60 minutes per student per week. In addition, each applied studio (e.g., flute, viola, tuba, etc.) convenes all students in the studio for a minimum of one hour per week in a “studio class,” providing additional instructional opportunities.

C. External Validation of Student Success

Schwob Music Performance majors are recognized both nationally and internationally in music competitions, career placement, and graduate studies.

Graduates from the BM in Performance degrees have entered some of the best graduate programs in music in the world in the last several years—often with full scholarships—including:

Cincinnati Conservatory of Music
Cleveland Institute of Music
Guildhall School of Music and Drama (England)
Hochschule für Musik, Theater und Medien (Hanover)
Indiana University
Kunstuniversität Graz (Austria)
Mannes College The New School for Music
Northwestern University
Rice University
State University of New York at Stony Brook
University of Texas
University of Illinois
Yale University

Competition results provide another external validation of student success in the BM in Performance degree—including Music Teachers National Association (MTNA) National Honors, MTNA Regional Honors, MTNA State Honors, Southeastern National Association of Teachers of Singing (NATS) Honors, Georgia NATS Honors, and many more national and international competition honors. The success of Schwob School of Music students in a large variety of competitions over the past several years has been extraordinary. Here is a recent sampling:

MTNA State 2013 Honors:

- Andrew Smith, Honorable Mention, Young Artist Composition
- Wesley Phillips, 1st place, Senior Woodwind
- Kristen Urbanski, 2nd place, Young Artist Woodwind
- Alex Clay, Honorable Mention, Young Artist Woodwind
- Sophie Wang, 1st place, Senior String
- Colin Fruit, 2nd place, Senior String
- Valeriya Nedviga , 2nd place, Young Artist String

Georgia NATS 2013 Honors:

- Jeanette Luna - 1st Place, Overall Winner, Category 9, Senior Women
- Hilma Wikstöröm – 1st Place, Category 13A, Graduate Women
- Jeanette Luna – 1st Place, Category 11B, Senior Women
- Kacy Hill – 1st Place, Category 5A, Freshmen Women
- Brianna Gilliam, 2nd Place, Category 11B, Senior Women
- Jake Wood, 2nd Place, Category 8B, Sophomore Men
- Abigail Brown, 2nd Place, Category 7B, Sophomore Women
- Kelsey Armstrong, 2nd Place, Category 7D, Sophomore Women
- Briana Wilson, 2nd Place, Category 5A, Freshmen Women
- Bianca Alomar, 2nd Place, Category 21A, Freshmen-Sophomore Women's Musical Theater
- Yulia Ugay, 3rd Place, Category 13A, Graduate Women
- Trent McConnell, 3rd Place, Category 12, Senior Men
- Björg Hilmarsdóttir, 3rd Place, Category 11B, Senior Women
- Lauren Urbina, 3rd Place, Category 9A, Junior Women
- Kayla King, 3rd Place, Category 7A, Sophomore Women
- Mamie Knight, 3rd Place, Category 5C, Freshmen Women
- Sean Meara, 3rd Place, Category 24, Junior and Senior Men's Musical Theater

Other competitions Honors 2013:

- Ford Fourqurean, clarinet, 1st place, virtuoso category, Georgia Philharmonic Samuel Fordis Concerto Competition
- Likai He, violin, 1st place, artisan category, Georgia Philharmonic Samuel Fordis Concerto Competition
- Tatiana Muzanova, piano, won First Prize, Special Prize for American Piece and Special Liszt Prize at Liszt-Garrison International Piano Competition in Baltimore
- Katherine Holmes, guitar, won a "Merit Award" in the Youngarts competition
- Lydia Carroll, flutes, 2nd place, Atlanta Flute Club Young Artist Competition
- Allison Lee, flute, 3rd place, Atlanta Flute Club Young Artist Competition

Indicators of Good Advising

There is no formal assessment of academic advising, although the Coordinator of Advising leads annual training sessions and makes an “advisor checklist” for advisors to use as a guide each semester. Students enrolled in the BM in Performance degree are advised primarily by our full-time faculty. Faculty committed to high-quality advising and several individuals are involved in checking student registrations for errors. Errors are reported back to the advisor when they are discovered, regardless of whether they originated with the student or the advisor. Degree requirement sheets/Suggested Course of Study sheets posted online for each degree are easy to read for students, who often print and annotate them to keep track of their curricular progress.

Six-Week Alerts

This program was designed by the Schwob School. Six weeks into every semester, Schwob faculty members are asked to submit the names of students who have a “C” or lower in any course. They also provide details as to quality of work completed, attendance, attitude, and suggestions for improvement. Advisors receive the “alert,” and each student so identified must meet with his/her advisor. During this meeting, the student is made aware of the situation, and, together with the advisor, creates a plan for improvement. With nine weeks left in the semester there is plenty of time for a student to alter bad habits and get needed help in time to pass the course.

Departmental Reward System

Rewards for Teaching Excellence

Faculty members in the Schwob School are evaluated annually on their effectiveness in the classroom, as measured by student evaluations, teaching observations by the Director, and consideration of faculty success in the areas of teaching, creative activities, and service. Student achievement and success—as measured above, in addition to consideration of test scores and major field examinations—are also considered. Faculty members are justly rewarded for teaching excellence in the tenure and promotion process, and by means of merit raises when these are budgeted.

Peer Review

As described above, Schwob School full-time faculty members subscribe to a voluntary system of formative peer review. This process—though time-consuming—is deemed a necessary ingredient in the Schwob curricular process, emphasizing the community of teachers in which we all are active members.

Faculty Travel

As a unit of the College of the Arts at CSU, the Schwob School is allocated a small per-faculty travel budget. To augment these funds, the School allocates Foundation funds so that faculty members receive a travel allotment each semester for professional travel. Funds are assigned by a Faculty Travel Committee, whose criteria for awards include applicability to the Scholarship of Teaching, a key component of the Peer Review Process.

Faculty travel is inextricably linked to good teaching in that faculty members presenting creative work at conferences/symposia focused on music teaching receive higher marks/more money than those seeking funds that have less direct applicability to teaching (such as funds for a performance off-campus).

Program Improvement Plans

The School of Music remains committed to faculty development in teaching—and to the scholarship of teaching—as a line item in the budget.

II C. Quality of Research and Scholarship—Very Strong

Opportunity for Student Research Projects

Students are required to write research papers in both semesters of the (required) Music History sequence, as well as selected upper-level history, theory, and special topic course offerings. A number of students have successfully participated in CSU's "Tower Day", and have received funding for research projects from Student Research & Creative Endeavors Grants. Students have recently participated as presenters in the National Conference on Undergraduate Research, as well as regional and national Society of Composers conferences, among other conferences.

Faculty Publications, Presentations, and Grants

Our evaluation system expects applied music faculty to include performance as a major component of their professional activity. In addition to performances, music faculty produce recordings, present at professional conferences and as guests at higher education institutions, adjudicate competitions, and publish articles, books and compositions.

Faculty research and publication are strongly linked to creativity, innovation, and collaboration across campus. One of the innovations espoused by the Schwob faculty is the creative campus. Cognizant of the fact that our economic system is moving from manufacturing to knowledge-based industries, the necessary skills Americans may offer the global market increasing become creativity, ingenuity, and vision. Music and the fine and performing arts have a unique role to play in developing the creative campus since they have long been recognized as the catalyst of creative work across the disciplines. The arts can be used to create, stimulate and nurture more opportunities for students to find personal expression. Schwob faculty and administrators are taking the lead in this initiative at CSU, forging collaborations with the Cunningham Center for Leadership (for example, an innovative leadership training program placing educational and corporate leaders in an orchestra rehearsal to observe/participate in non-verbal leadership styles), working with members of the community to bring in renowned arts consultants WolfBrown, and so forth. These efforts orchestrate faculty research and publications beyond the typical venues utilized by the performance faculty.

Conference Presentations

Faculty at the Schwob School are engaged as presenters at a variety of regional, national, and international conferences focused on improvement in teaching and student learning.

Faculty presentations at national conferences during recent years include the National Association of Schools of Music ("More than Teaching Music Appreciation: Sustaining Core Musical Values with the Millennials"), American String Teachers Association National Conference ("Starting a Middle School String Program"), Maryland Music Educators Association, Virginia Music Educators Association, and others.

Performance faculty are also engaged directing all-state band and choral programs, having directed all-state programs in North Carolina, Texas, Wyoming, Florida, Iowa, Colorado, New Jersey, South Carolina and Tennessee. These prestigious invitations indicate the quality of teaching offered to Schwob students on a daily basis.

Faculty Grants

Schwob School of Music faculty members receive funding from both CSU sources and from outside sources: Here is a representative sample:

Dr. Elizabeth Parker: Summer Research Grant to complete a three article series on Music, Identity and Adolescence Summer 2010.

Dr. Elizabeth Parker: College of the Arts Faculty Research Scholarship Award used to present at National American Choral Directors Conference Spring 2011.

Dr. Sean Powell: Recipient of Four Undergraduate Research Awards to purchase technology to document and present case studies Fall 2009.

Dr. Kristen Hansen: In-house Technology Grant used to equip five music classrooms with updates on sound equipment and mediated technology (data projector, appropriate media inputs, etc.).

Dr. Andrée Martin: For premiere of Ricardo Zohn-Muldoon's Comala, with Furious Band at Festival Musica y Escena, Mexico City, Mexico, November 2001. Arts Foundation in New York City, N.Y.

Dr. Lisa Oberlander: For travel, lodging, meals with three faculty colleagues for the International Clarinet Association conference, Los Angeles, CA, $4000

Dr. Andrew Zohn: "Symposium Donation," Sponsored by Savarez Inc., Columbus State University, $500.00.

(December 2008 - Present); "Performing Arts Grant," Sponsored by D'Adarrio Arts Foundation, Columbus State University, $1,000.00. (September 2008 - Present); Faculty Research Grant," Sponsored by CSU, Columbus State University, $2,300.00. (May 2008)

Dr. Fred Cohen: Total external grants received--$52,000; Composition Fellowship, New Jersey State Council on the Arts 2006; Chamber Music America Commission 2001; Global Education Travel Grant

Program Improvement Plans

In keeping with the mission of the Schwob School of Music as a community of artists committed to the highest standards of artistry, the faculty continues to explore creative research possibilities and performances with increased quality of venues. The recent addition of the Office of Grants and Sponsored Projects at CSU will help to support our growing professional faculty.

II D. Quality of Service – Very Strong

Activities to Enhance Program, Department, College, Institution, Community and/or Region

Activities specific to the Bachelor of Music in Performance program

The Schwob School of Music faculty is committed to the local, regional, national, and international music performance activities. Faculty members appear as performers in public at local community, national and international conferences, festivals, and competitions regularly and actively. Examples include adjudication for the Georgia Governor's Summer Program, Georgia Honor Bands, local and regional NATS competitions, local, regional and national MTNA competitions. Performances include multiple free performances by faculty members presented annually in Legacy Hall, RiverCenter for the Arts, as well as multiple performances in area schools.

Quality Public Performances

Performances at the Schwob School occur in one of three venues in its RiverCenter home—Studio Theater, Legacy Hall, or Bill Heard Theater—and attended by the public in numbers ranging from 100 to 2000. Student performances by Schwob School musicians are perceived as professional events by the community of Columbus. Students in the BM in Performance degree participate regularly in these performances as instrumentalists, singers or conductors.

Local, Regional, National, and International Adjudication of Student Performances

Students from the Schwob School have enjoyed validation of their learning in local, regional, national and international music adjudications. A further measure of student success is admission to graduate school and job placement. Finally, the Schwob School of Music annually administers approximately $500,000 of merit-based scholarships raised from private foundations, endowments, and the Columbus community.

II E. Program Honors, Awards and Successes—Very Strong

Program Honors

In 2008-09, the Schwob School of Music was awarded the Regents Teaching Excellence Award for Departments and Programs by the Board of Regents of the University System of Georgia. This award is given to one department/program in the University System of Georgia each year. The criteria for the award includes evidence of:

- Individual and collective faculty efforts to improve teaching and student learning.
- Methods of assessment of student learning and achievement that go beyond student evaluations, and the use of assessment results to inform teaching practices, and curriculum development and revision.

- Active support to enable faculty to use innovative and effective forms of pedagogy and technology, e.g., critical thinking, collaborative learning, cooperative learning, problem-based learning, learning communities, etc.
- Strong links between good teaching and various rewards, e.g., compensation, promotion, tenure, grants, leaves, travel, departmental or program-based awards, etc.
- Department/unit policies that encourage collaborative faculty efforts, including team teaching, teaching discussion groups, common assessments, interdisciplinary courses, learning communities, mentoring, etc.
- An on-going and data-driven process for reviewing and reshaping curricula so that achieving academic excellence and serving the needs of all students remain as top priorities.
- Exemplary programs for advising, mentoring, recruiting, and retaining students; co-curricular work with students; out-of-class learning.
- Success of the department's or program's students, e.g., graduation, job placement, acceptance in graduate school, etc.
- Clear articulation of how quality is defined, promoted, and assessed by the department or program.

Faculty Honors

In order to recruit the most highly qualified students to the Schwob School, faculty engage in a variety of activities throughout the year. Here is a recent sampling:

- Hosting and directing The 2012 International Saxophone Symposium And Competition at Columbus State University
- Hosting The 2013 International Trombone Festival at Columbus State University
- Performing at the Ninth Annual Thailand International Composition Festival, Mahidol University, Thailand and giving recital and masterclass at Silpakorn University in Bangkok, Thailand
- Contributing a chapter in the book Mountain Peak Music's "Stories of Recovery," due fall 2013
- Performing as guest artist/principal trumpet for the Lone Star Wind Symphony's performance at the 2012 Midwest Clinic and serving as artist faculty member of the 2013 National Trumpet Competition held at George Mason University in Fairfax, Virginia
- Releasing CD Times Like These for clarinet and piano
- Performing and teaching master classes at Western University, Ontario, Canada
- Featured as guest artist and teacher at the 2013 Idaho/Montana Clarinet Day, Idaho State University, Pocatello, ID
- Releasing CD A Beautiful Noise
- Presentations at both the Georgia Music Educators Association (GMEA) and the Alabama Music Educators Association (AMEA)
- Releasing CD RiverCenter Favorites on the Jordan Concert Organ through the American Guild of Organists
- Leading performances by the National Cup Orchestra at Alice Tully Hall; the Naples, FL Philharmonic; the New York Concerti Sinfonietta; the PAI Festival Orchestra in Kingston, PA; and the Sequitur Ensemble as part of a residency at the University of Pittsburgh
- Serving as a clinician for Music in the Parks in Atlanta and working on a new conducting text to be published by Connect4Education, Inc.

II F. Quality of Curriculum—Very Strong

Relationship Between Program's Curriculum and Its Outcomes

All courses in the catalog have been related to learning outcomes derived from the CSU mission and from national accreditation standards. These relationships are confirmed annually as part of the major field assessment process. Please see Appendix 1 for degree curriculum, and Appendix 2 for the latest major field assessment report.

Incorporation of Technology

Technological skills are required in many music courses; our infusion of student use of technology into the music curriculum meets the standards set forth by NASM, which are:

- a basic overview understanding of how technology serves the field of music as a whole
- a working knowledge of the technological developments applicable to their area of specialization

Each BM in Performance student is expected to use email, word processing programs, electronic keyboards, and video equipment. Each student uses Finale and/or Sibelius notation programs in the music theory sequence. E-mail attachments are also commonly used as part of the software program that is required in our ear training courses. Our students are expected to use the Internet for research in many core music classes. All Students majoring in music performance are having opportunities to complete informative presentations using PowerPoint. Some students use Excel software. Other programs and technology used in music classes include Pyware 3-D Java software for Marching Band Techniques, internet search engines, word processing, e-mail, and recorded media (video cameras, CD players, DVD players, recording equipment) in pedagogy and literature courses. See section II G for a list of technology available in the Schwob School of Music.

Utilization of Multidisciplinary Approaches

The study of music as a media art requires increasingly multidisciplinary approaches to previously “purely” musical topics. Examples abound: music in film, music of the Impressionist era, music and society in the high baroque, and so forth. Faculty are encouraged to mine the auxiliary arts for illuminating examples of the social and aesthetic uses of music, and to organize courses such as Music History around such topics, rather than a merely chronological approach. The school’s Benchmark Goals (see above) help articulate multidisciplinary topics and exercises.

Utilization of Multicultural Perspectives

The ITDS courses provided in the BM in Performance degree cover broad aspects of arts, educational philosophy, the western intellectual tradition, and multiculturalism in music, directly addressing the students’ ability to address culture and history from a variety of perspectives and understand moral and ethical problems, as well as the ability to respect, understand, and evaluate work in a variety of disciplines, explain and defend views effectively and rationally, and experience one or more arts forms other than music.

Program Improvement Plans

We continue to advocate for full-time faculty positions in the several applied areas where they are lacking, as well as for a full-time musicologist. Filling these faculty positions would provide an important step toward improving the BM in Performance degree. We seek to expand and enhance student experience by providing superior performance opportunities, including grants to support student travel to competitions outside our area, as well as for chamber and ensemble performances in recognized venues around the country and around the world. Establishing further relationships between our institution and other universities and career professionals—including orchestra directors, opera company executives—would also have a beneficial effect on our students’ future professional development.

II G. Quality of Facilities and Equipment—Above Average

The Schwob School of Music boasts state-of-the-art facilities in many respects. The rating of this category is “above average” and not stronger due to the fact that the music library needs more resources to expand its collection, and more general music education materials and methods instruments could improve the student experience.

Availability of Classroom and Laboratory Space

The RiverCenter for the Performing Arts, opened in 2001, includes over forty practice rooms, four large rehearsal rooms, a percussion suite, 32 faculty offices, five classrooms of varying size and purpose, two seminar rooms, a Music Library, an audio recording room, an administration suite and two computer labs—an excellent facility. Three concert halls, Bill Heard Theater (seats 2000), Legacy Hall (seats 450), and Studio Theater (seats 150), are managed jointly by CSU and the RiverCenter, Inc.

- All of the preceding classrooms are equipped with an upright Steinway piano, audio playback equipment, one computer each, and a pull-down screen. Some also have an overhead projector, and one has an electronic keyboard in addition to the acoustic upright piano.
- A keyboard lab with 17 electronic keyboards including a new teacher control module, 8 computers, and a printer.
- 250 Wenger Instrumental Lockers, Wenger Choral, Band Pull-Out Library Units
- Two small, general purpose computer labs are equipped with the Microsoft Office Suite, Finale and Sibelius music notation software, Apple's iLife and iWork packages, printers, and wired Internet access to allow students and faculty easy access to electronic mail and online resources. Similar workstations are also available in the library and in many of the classrooms throughout the building.
- The Digital Media Studio, housed in the Schwob School's front office area, contains three more computer workstations for specialized functions and doubles as a classroom for small groups. Two more Pro Tools machines, equipped with M-Audio ProFire 610 audio interfaces, Waves Processors, iZotope, MIDI hardware and software, and Max/MSP, are generally used in advanced recording and music technology courses. Recording studio projects are also sometimes completed in this space. The third machine, a video workstation, has a 37" HDTV, a MiniDV transfer deck, an analog to digital video convertor for digitizing VHS tapes, and Final Cut Pro software. Students creating DVD audition materials, YouTube videos, concert films, and conducting review videos use this workstation. Students also have access to SmartMusic software in a variety of locations, including practice rooms and faculty studios. SmartMusic contains a large catalog of accompaniments that students can use to rehearse their instrumental and vocal repertoire. The recording studio also owns several portable audio and video recorders which are available for student checkout, and more than a dozen video cameras for faculty and student use.

III G. Cost Effectiveness of Instructional Delivery—Very Strong

The school relies to a great extent on fund raising to supplement annual operating funding provided by the institution. There is broad recognition at the college and university level that music instruction at the college level across all degree programs has high resource needs. The NASM Visitors' Report offers this note of caution: "The school is dependent on external fund-raising to an extent that could limit the program's ability to set its own priorities." Within budget constraints, however, resources are well managed. Expenses are met through strong enrollments and increasing private funding for equipment and salary lines (endowed in perpetuity).

Section IV - Program Viability

IV A. Summary of Program's Viability—Very Strong

The viability of the current BM degree in Performance is supported by our recent reaccreditation by NASM, our reputation for high standards, and the career success of graduates both nationally and internationally. Faculty resources are in place, and the program includes a strong core music curriculum. Based on the positive feedback of current students as well as other graduate programs, orchestras, and the need for the program in the nation, we anticipate steady growth as well as an increase in enrollment. Our five-year retention and graduation rate and regional reputation for excellence are also strong indicators of our program's success.

IV B. Summary of Program Improvement Plan—Very Strong

The Schwob School of Music has a new Strategic Plan, approved in 2014, to guide future improvements. Creating full-time faculty positions in those applied areas are not currently represented, as well as adding a musicologist to the full-time faculty, would improve all degrees programs in the school. The curriculum committee will meet to discuss the placement of career development training in the BM in Performance degree; it needs to be required for each student. We are seeking to expand and continue to offer performance opportunities into high-quality programs in order to improve the student experience as a performer. Grants for supporting student travel to enter competitions and giving public performances in different venues will be sought to support the program. Establishing further relationships between our institution and other universities would also have a vital impact on our students' future professional development.

Student Learning Outcomes	Assessment Method	Assessment Criteria	Assessment Results/Analysis
1. Applied music major Proficiency	Eight semester of applied music are required. This course included weekly lesson grades, public performances, and a final performance exam (jury). Applied music rubrics used by faculty and students to make a potentially subjective process as objective as possible. The end-of-semester jury serves as a snapshot of the performing level of the student after each semester of study. Two required recitals include a recital jury three weeks before the recital judged by a panel of faculty.	Jury is graded by a panel of faculty and grades are averaged. A 70% or better is required to pass the jury. Students giving a recital must meet a jury panel's minimum standards of performance using a performance rubric. The panel gives a grade of Pass or Fail for the recital.	2012-2013: Average of 91/92 passed their semester juries and recitals
2. Knowledge of literature appropriate to the applied music major	Repertoire assigned for end-of-semester juries is appropriate to the applied music major Literature courses, required for all BM Performance majors, use written and listening exams to test knowledge of the appropriate literature	Successful completion of jury examinations each semester Assignments in literature courses must be passed with a 70% or better	2012-2013 : Average of 91/92 passed their semester juries 2012-2013: Average of 46/49 passed these courses

3. Proficiency in conducting skills	Basic conducting course required for all student. Final exam is a conducting exam in from of the class	Students must pass the Basic Conducting final exam with a 60% or better	No students failed the Basic Conducting final exam in 2012 2013
-------------------------------------	--	---	---

4. Proficiency in a secondary applied area	Piano proficiency exam required for all student are not keyboard majors (embedded in MUSA 2315). This is a performance exam with several components that must be performed for faculty. Piano majors must take two semesters of organ and one semester of harpsichord. Organ majors must take two semesters of piano and one semester of harpsichord. Vocal students take two semesters of secondary piano. These courses include weekly lesson grades, public performances, and a final jury (performance exam). Applied music rubrics used by faculty and students to make a potentially subjective process as objective as possible	To pass the piano proficiency, students must perform each required item separately and reach the minimum standard for proficiency as determined by the piano faculty. Students taking secondary applied instruments must meet minimum standards set by each area for sound technique, and musicality in an end-of-semester jury (performance exam). The jury is graded by a panel of faculty in order to provide the most objective assessment possible and provides written feedback to the student.	100% passed the Piano proficiency in 2012-2013 Keyboard majors were 100% successful in secondary keyboard courses in 2012-2013
5. Understanding of music theory and aural/visual/ verbal analysis	Music Theory 1-4 addresses all of these areas. Written exams, must be passed with 70% or better	All exams and other projects written compositions, verbal discussion/defense of analysis are all used as assessment.	2013: 41/42 students passed Theory 4 with a 70% or better
6. Ability to apply knowledge of musical form and composition	Music Theory 4 is the culmination of the sequence. It includes a required composition assignment, which also requires control of form	The final composition assignment must be passed with a 70% or better	2013: 39/42 passed with 70% or better

7. Knowledge of various styles, cultures, and media, and ability to place music in historical/cultural/stylistic contexts.	Direct assessments of this outcome are found in the written and listening exams in the required Music History sequence, MUSC 3228 and 3229. The exams include essays and listening identification to measure this outcome.	Students must pass these exams with a 70% or better	Fall 2012: 3228: 43/47 passed Spring 2013: 3229: 40/44 passed
8. Ability to form and defend value judgments about music.	Every Music History exam requires knowledge of two special characteristics about the list of works required for that unit. The question reads, "Why is this work so important that it was chosen to represent this period?"	Students must pass these exams with 70% or better	See above for data
9. Ability to sing at sight tonal and atonal melodies	The final exam in Music Skills 4, the last in the sequence, measures the ability to sing tonal and atonal melodies at sight. The exam measures pitch accuracy and rhythm accuracy.	Students must pass with a 70% or better	Spring 2013: 48/48 passed
10. Ability to apply knowledge of pedagogical skills in vocal and/or instrumental idioms	Students are observed teaching in pedagogy courses. Faculty use a rubric designed to evaluate students in their content knowledge and communication skills.
