

EdD in Curriculum and Leadership

The Ed.D. in Curriculum and Leadership is a 63-hour cohort program featuring three distinct program tracks: curriculum and instruction, educational leadership, and higher education administration. Both the curriculum and instruction and the educational leadership tracks are intended for P-12 educators and leaders. The higher education administration track is intended for faculty, staff, and administrators working within higher education or in related fields. All three program tracks are offered 100% online.

The Ed.D. program admits new students every Fall semester. The deadline to submit all admission materials each year is May 15th. Qualified applicants with completed packets will be invited to complete writing assessments and participate in interviews (virtually) in early June of each year. Admission's decisions are finalized by the first week of July for an August start.
